The Museum at the Carnegie

On January 5, 1919, doors opened for the dedication of the Port Angeles Carnegie Library. Accounts of the occasion include descriptions of the central space and the expansive reading room. On October 30, 2004 a second dedication took place to celebrate the opening of The Museum at the Carnegie. Exhibits on both floors of the building tell of the county's rich and fascinating heritage.

The Lincoln School Project

Lincoln Grade School, built in 1916, served as a school until 1978. It was vacant and destined to be razed when purchased by CCHS in 1991. Since that time volunteers have made steady progress renovating the building which will house the Clallam County Museum, Clallam County Historical Society and Clallam County Genealogy Society. Completion of this project will give the community a complete Historical Resource Center that includes a research library, photo and newspaper archives and much more.
